SAT 07:30 Threads of Life: A History of the World Through the Eye of a Needle (Omnibus) (m0002h2k)

Clare Hunter travels through the centuries and across continents uncovering the lives of women and men who have used sewing and embroidery to tell their stories - sometimes in the most unlikely and hardest of circumstances.

This is a treasure trove, featuring:
* The political storytelling of the Bayeux tapestry's anonymous embroiderers

* Prisoners of War memorializing their lives in the harshest of conditions during the Second World War,

* The marches celebrating 100 years' of women's suffrage.
Textile artist and curator, Clare reveals how sewing and embroidery are as much about identity, politics and memory as they are about craft and art.

Threads of Life is also peppered throughout with moments from Clare's own life as a textile artist, for instance, her first adventures with needle and thread, or the discovery of a beautifully worked patchwork quilt in an aunt's attic decades later.

This is a delightful celebration of sewing as an intimate and powerful medium for telling stories.

Omnibus of five parts abridged by Julian Wilkinson.
Read by Siobhan Redmond.

 Between the Ears - The Milk Way
 Poet Daljit Nagra revisits the BBC's poetry archive and selects The Milk Way.
 This features poet Samantha Wynne-Rhydderch and composer Nina Perry as they create a radiophonic poem exploring the sounds and stories surrounding the flow of milk out of west Wales while the Welsh landscape flows into the sea.
 We hear the voice of the path itself "The Milk Walk" (Y Wac Laeth in Welsh) the route that both the milk and the Cardiganshire dairy workers took to London during the last century.

 We meet Mae, a young girl who took the milk train to work in a dairy in London in the 1960's, and Jac Alun, a sailor from a local farming family who moved to the city to sell milk during the Depression.
 These three monologues are interwoven with personal testimony from those who currently live and work on the edge of the land:
 * Jon Meirion Jones (son of Jac Alun)
 * Local farmer, Steffan Rees
 * Artist, Lilwen Lewis
 * Marine biology student, Tom Malpas
 * Nia Haf Jones from the North Wales Wildlife Trust
 Stories of migration and milk both past and present are woven into a musical soundscape that paints a picture of humming dairy farms, strange underwater worlds where dolphins echolocate, coral ticks, and where houses are 'tipping' into the sea.
 The Path is performed by Samantha Wynne-Rhydderch
 Mae the girl by Sara Gregory
 Jac Alun the sailor by Matthew Gravelle
 Written by Samantha Wynne-Rhydderch
 Composed and Produced by Nina Perry

 Inga Beale
 Kirsty Young's castaway is the business woman, Inga Beale. She has been the CEO of Lloyd's of London since January 2014 and was the first woman to hold the post in the 325 years since the insurer was founded in 1688.
 She is the middle child of a Norwegian mother and an English father and grew up in Newbury, Berkshire. Her career in insurance began in London in the early 1980s, but she tired of the predominantly male culture of the industry and left the City in 1989 to go travelling for a year. On her return she worked for the Prudential and then for GE Solutions, the insurance arm of General Electric, where the work took her abroad.
 She left GE in 2006 to turn around a failing Swiss company, before joining the Zurich Insurance Group. Her last role before joining Lloyd's as CEO in 2014 was as chief executive of Canopus, a privately held Lloyd's insurer.
 In 2015, she topped a power list of the world's leading 100 LGBT executives. She is openly bisexual after coming out in 2008 and has been married to her husband since 2013.

 1. The Arrival
 The demon Crowley is tasked with the delivery of a baby to St Beryl's hospital, initiating a chain of events that will lead to Armageddon.
 But things don't quite go to plan.
 This is the first ever dramatisation of Terry Pratchett and Neil Gaiman's Good Omens.
 Starring Peter Serafinowicz and Mark Heap.
 Adaptation and sound design by Dirk Maggs.
 According to the Nice and Accurate Prophecies of Agnes Nutter, the world will end on a Saturday. A Saturday quite soon, on Radio 4.
 Events have been set in motion to bring about the End of Days. The armies of Good and Evil are gathering and making their way towards the sleepy English village of Lower Tadfield. The Four Horsepersons of the Apocalypse - War, Famine, Pollution and Death - have been summoned from the corners of the earth and are assembling.
 Witchfinder Sergeant Shadwell and his assistant Newton Pulsifer are also en route to Tadfield to investigate some unusual phenomena in the area, while Anathema Device, descendant of prophets and witch Agnes Nutter, tries to decipher her ancestor's cryptic predictions about exactly where the impending Apocalypse will take place.
 Atlantis is rising, fish are falling from the sky; everything seems to be going to the Divine Plan.
 Everything that is but for the unlikely duo of an angel and a demon who are not all that keen on the prospect of the forthcoming Rapture. Aziraphale (once an angel in the Garden of Eden, but now running an antiquarian bookshop in London), and Crowley (formerly Eden's snake, now driving around London in shades and a vintage Bentley) have been living on Earth for several millennia and have become rather fond of the place. But if they are to stop Armageddon taking place they've got to find and kill the one who will be the one bring about the apocalypse: the Antichrist himself.
 There's just one small problem: someone seems to have mislaid him...

 Tracy Ann Oberman reads Damian Barr's blistering debut novel, spanning 100 years of South Africa's dark past and present, from the 1901 Boer War to 2010.
 Inspired by real events, it explores South Africa's hidden colonial history as well as its shocking present-day darkness. Beginning in 1901, the height of the second Boer War, and Sarah van der Watt and her son wait in fear for the English to arrive at their farm....
 Abridged in five parts by Richard Hamilton
 Producer: Justine Willett
 First broadcast on BBC Radio 4 in May 2019.
MON 07:15 Elizabeth Jane Howard - The Cazalets (b01phf4k)
 The Light Years
 1. Summer
 The Light Years tells the story of the extended Cazalet family. Set in the lead up to the outbreak of the Second World War, it appears that the Cazalets have it all.
 But we soon discover that infidelity, indiscretions, jealousies and misplaced loyalties lurk just beneath the surface.
 In the hot summer of 1938, Home Place in the beautiful Sussex countryside is frantically being opened up and prepared for another Cazalet family holiday, as siblings Hugh, Edward, Rupert and Rachel - and their respective families - are reunited. Rupert is trying not to think about whether he married the beautiful but rather petulant Zoe too soon after his first wife's death; Hugh and his wife Sybil each try to put the other first, not necessarily to their mutual advantage; Edward is mulling on how he might be able to get away from his wife, Villy, to spend time with his mistress and Rachel is trying to find a private place to read her letter in secret.
 But the wider world is about to intrude on their lives forever and each is increasingly to wonder what their future may hold - for themselves and their children.

 Series 5
 Karl Marx
 BBC Radio 4's premier comedy-economics hybrid tackles the big, competing theories of macroeconomics.
 These are little short of religions to their proponents, and the figures who deified them dominate the intellectual landscape in a way that mere politicians can only dream of. These are the Big Beards, the Glinting Eyes, the Bristling Moustaches and Eyebrows of "Worldly Philosophy" and their insights, calculations and hallucinations remain as contentious today as they were when first inked into place.
 In this series Simon Evans, with the help of Undercover Economist, Tim Harford will advance through the modern industrial era using three great beacons as their guide - Adam Smith, Karl Marx and John Maynard Keynes - and reflect on how they continue to shape our world today.
 In this episode, we leap forward 100 years to Karl Marx.
 A towering figure in world, let alone economic, history, and endlessly fascinating as much as for his personal foibles as for his vast influence on the course of 20th-century history. Few figures are more divisive.
 Yet is he fully or even remotely understood by one tenth of those who have strong views on him? Are his central ideas now discredited by history, or are we still waiting for his philosophy to stop merely describing the world, as for many it still does, and instead, as he famously declared, to start changing it? Is Marxism genuinely gaining ground even as his economic predictions gather dust? And what exactly is dialectical materialism?
 All this plus jokes in 28 minutes.
 Presenters: Simon Evans and Tim Harford
 Writers: Simon Evans, Tim Harford, Dan Evans and Robert Ledger
 Producer: Richard Morris
 First broadcast on BBC Radio 4 in May 2019.

 The Games We Play
 True stories told live in the USA: Sarah Austin Jenness introduces stories with a win, lose or draw feeling.
 The Moth is an acclaimed not-for-profit organisation dedicated to the art and craft of storytelling based in the USA. Since 1997, it has celebrated both the raconteur and the storytelling novice, who has lived through something extraordinary and yearns to share it. Originally formed by the writer George Dawes Green as an intimate gathering of friends on a porch in Georgia (where moths would flutter in through a hole in the screen), and then recreated in a New York City living room. The Moth quickly grew to produce immensely popular events at theatres and clubs around New York City and later around the USA, the UK and other parts of the world.
 The Moth has presented more than 15,000 stories, told live and without notes, to standing-room-only crowds worldwide. The Moth podcast is downloaded over 27 million times a year.
 Featuring true stories told live on stage without scripts, from the humorous to the heart-breaking.
 The Moth Radio Hour is produced by Jay Allison and Atlantic Public Media in Woods Hole, Massachusetts and is distributed by the Public Radio Exchange.
 First heard on PRX in the USA in 2020.

 Manic Street Preachers (the A-Side)
 Manic Street Preachers talk about their third, career-defining, 1994 album The Holy Bible.
 Series in which leading performers and songwriters talk about the album that made them or changed them.
 Recorded in front of a live audience at the BBC's iconic Maida Vale Studios, each edition includes two episodes - the A-side and B-side.
 In the A-side, Manic Street Preachers - Sean Moore, James Dean Bradfield and Nicky Wire - talk to John Wilson.
 Released a mere five months before the disappearance of main lyricist and rhythm guitarist Richey Edwards, The Holy Bible reflects his fragile mental state.
 On its release, Q said "even a cursory glance at the titles will confirm that this is not the new Gloria Estefan album". And with tracks like "Yes", "Of Walking Abortion", "Mausoleum" and "4st 7lb", the lyrics deal with everything from prostitution and serial killers to the Holocaust and self-starvation.
 For the first time in two decades, Nicky, James and Sean from Manic Street Preachers play songs from 'The Holy Bible' in front of an audience.
 In the B-side of the programme, it's the turn of the audience to ask the questions.

TUE 06:00 Good Omens (b04vdqpp)
2. End of Days
Realising they have been protecting and corrupting the wrong child, Aziraphale and Crowley set out to discover what happened to the real son of Satan.
With a cast led by Peter Serafinowicz and Mark Heap, this is the first ever dramatisation of Terry Pratchett and Neil Gaiman's Good Omens.

Events have been set in motion to bring about the End of Days. The armies of Good and Evil are gathering and making their way towards the sleepy English village of Lower Tadfield. The Four Horsepersons of the Apocalypse - War, Famine, Pollution and Death - have been summoned from the corners of the earth and are assembling.
Witchfinder Sergeant Shadwell and his assistant Newton Pulsifer are also en route to Tadfield to investigate some unusual phenomena in the area, while Anathema Device, descendent of prophets and witch Agnes Nutter, tries to decipher her ancestor's cryptic predictions about exactly where the impending Apocalypse will take place.
Atlantis is rising, fish are falling from the sky; everything seems to be going to the Divine Plan.
Everything that is but for the unlikely duo of an angel and a demon who are not all that keen on the prospect of the forthcoming Rapture. Aziraphale (once an angel in the Garden of Eden, but now running an antiquarian bookshop in London), and Crowley (formerly Eden's snake, now driving around London in shades and a vintage Bentley) have been living on Earth for several millennia and have become rather fond of the place. But if they are to stop Armageddon taking place they've got to find and kill the one who will the one bring about the apocalypse: the Antichrist himself.
There's just one small problem: someone seems to have misled him...

Beating Hitler with Humour
German writer Timur Vermes examines how the BBC used humour throughout the war to counter Nazi propaganda.
Historians have poured over Joseph Goebbels and his reputedly efficient propaganda machine - particularly the Nazi manipulation of radio to gain and maintain power. But few have explored the leading opponent of his propaganda - the German Service of the BBC. Fewer still have acknowledged that the BBC's radio transmissions to Germany contained not only news and comment but also drew on an unusual method of British psychological warfare, satire and humour, as a form of counter-propaganda.
From mid-1940 until the very end of the war, pioneering satire feature programmes were written by German exiles under the close supervision of British authorities. They included Frau Wernecke - a sketch fronted by a fictional Berlin housewife, Kurt and Willi - a double act depicting two bungling Nazi propagandists, and Letters from Corporal Hirsnschal - a soldier writing to his wife. Meanwhile another popular feature, Hitler on Hitler tried to point out inconsistencies in the Fuhrer's rhetoric.
What did the authors of these programmes, the BBC officials and the relevant governmental institutions hope to achieve with satire as a weapon of war?
Timur Vermes pours over the archive with experts, hears testimony from those who risked their lives listening to the satire, and tries to work out if satire is effective as wartime propaganda.

The Guiding Hound

How do guide dogs know where they're going? It's not like their handler whispers in their ear and asks to go to the pharmacy, maybe the toothpaste aisle. So how does it work? asks Charlotte, aged 42.

Dogs and humans have gone paw in hand for thousands of years. Historic and genetic evidence shows we've shaped each other's existence over millennia. But dogs were only first trained as guides for blind people in the UK 90 years ago.

What's the biology behind this extraordinary partnership?

Hannah heads to Guide Dogs UK's training school in Royal Leamington Spa. She meets up with expert Graham Kensett to find out what it takes to make a guide dog from nose to tail, starting from before birth and following the life course through to retirement.

Hannah also meets the delightful Wendy and Wilmott, a German shepherd and a retriever cross. Despite both still growing into their ears, they show her their already extraordinary skill set, from tackling obstacle courses to safely crossing roads. Cool, calm, patient, unflappable: Guide dogs are the astronauts of the canine world. But, as trainer Jenna explains, it's all in the partnership with the owner, who needs to do plenty of work in terms of training and learning routes to journey in harmony with their furry guide.

Richard Lane has owned guide dogs for over 25 years, and confirms this first hand. He reveals just how he gets to the toothpaste aisle, and tells Adam how at its peak a partnership can navigate London Waterloo station better than some sighted people, even at rush hour. Richard also explains how deeply felt the bond that forms between owner and dog is, and describes the hardest part of guide dog ownership: Letting go at the end.

Series 2

Birmingham to Stansted Airport

Comedy icon Alexei Sayle continues his series of rail journeys across the country with a trip from Birmingham to Stansted Airport

Alexei's mission is to break the golden rule of travelling by train and actually talk to his fellow passengers, in a quest for conversations with strangers that will reveal their lives, hopes, dreams and destinations.

Along the way, Alexei holds a finger into the wind of the thoughts and moods of the great British travelling public.

There's humour, sadness and surprise as people reveal what is going on in their lives and, as Alexei passes through familiar towns and cities, he also delves into his own personal stories of a childhood in Liverpool and a long career as a comedian, actor and author.

Alexei has a life-long ticket to ride in his DNA, as his father was a railway guard. As a child, Alexei travelled on trains with his mum and dad, not only in the UK but also abroad. While other children in Liverpool at the time thought a trip to Blackpool was a big adventure, Alexei travelled to Paris, experienced the Orient Express, had summer holidays in Czechoslovakia and visited mysterious cities with unpronounceable names in the farthest corners of Europe.

In this programme, Alexei meets Adam, a student at Cambridge on his way back to college with his mum Helen. Adam introduces Alexei to the mysterious world of competitive Pokemon. Among his many fellow travellers, Alexei also meets Holly who lives in Bali and is dedicated to studying and saving sharks; Megan, who was born in Arizona and is on her way to her first ever key note speech at the prestigious Sainsbury Laboratory in Cambridge and Katrin and Klara who have been on holiday in the UK, are flying home to Germany from Stansted, and are great fans of English humour.
